
New Geopolitics

Shanghai All-heart Environment Development Center

The new geopolitical theory of deep space control power is based on the development of human social environment and new productive forces. It can promote sustainable development of human society, common harmonious development and scientific development.

Those who can utilize energy and other resources' depth space properly and scientifically in the future will get the key to develop harmoniously with the nature on human beings' resources utilization, the key to world peace and the essential material basis to control the world and human beings destiny.

Climate and environmental issues are more serious problems than traditional geopolitical issues such as maritime rights. We all know the difficulties in solving the climate problem in terms of political solutions, and efforts to explain the relationship between natural science, geopolitics, and economic development thoroughly can clearly play an important role in political and economic solutions.

What you will get by completely practicing deep space control power will be millions of years of peace.

Multi-dimensional Space Resources Science is highly operational from basic to applied theories.